

SCORE!!! @your library with Information Literacy and Reading EXPLORATORIUM

Join us in this first PSLA Exploratorium at the 2008 PSLA Conference in Hershey, PA May 1-3, 2008. You might ask what an Exploratorium is; it is a place to explore ideas and methods through hands on exhibits. In San Francisco, the Exploratorium is a science museum dedicated to teaching science through hands-on exhibits. AASL had an Exploratorium in their 2006 Conference that was dedicated to exploring dozens of learning stations that exemplify "best practices" in school librarianship. AASL will repeat this Exploratorium in their 2007 with additional "best practices". PSLA knows that many of their members are creative, talented and ingenious when practicing librarianship in the school. We would like for you to share your ideas, practices, teaching tips and related resources or partnerships with conference attendees in May 2008. A workshop presentation may not be for you but the Exploratorium will give you the opportunity to shine!

PSLA's Exploratorium will be held Thursday evening from 5-7pm in the lobby in front of the exhibit hall. It will be displays, exchanging of ideas and possible mini presentations from those who will share their ideas. PSLA knows that many of their members are creative, talented and ingenious when practicing librarianship in the school. We would like for you to share and showcase your ideas, practices or partnerships with conference attendees in May 2008. Be a part of this two-hour conference opener by providing tabletop exhibits that showcase the excellence of school libraries, librarians and the organizations and institutions that support them. Electricity will not be available so please limit your displays. Perhaps a laptop with a running Powerpoint may suffice but is not necessary. Have handouts available to share your ideas.

If interested please fill out the following application.
